GIRL IN LOVE WITH 2

Says Evidence Will Show Dead Co-Ed Cared for Another

NORMAN, Okla.—(AP)—The defense of Neal Myers, University of Oklahoma Junior on trial for the murder of his co-ed sweetheart, 19-year-old Marian Mills, disclosed it will pitch much of its case about the state's star witness, Hazel Brown.

It was in the home of Mrs. Brown, a fraternity house cook, that the campus beauty queen died last July 10. In an opening statement Wednesday James Rinehart, attorney for young Myers, said the defense intended to show that Mrs. Brown advised young Myers to flee after the girl died.

He did become a fugitive, but surrendered three weeks later. Earlier young Myers' counsel disclosed that nine medical witnesses would be used to combat state's testimony that death was due to attempted criminal operation.

Rinehart described Mrs. Brown as a "woman greatly experienced in the ways of the world—she has been married three times."

"The evidence will show," he said, "that this woman, known by college students as 'Becky,' has been a nurse in an Oklahoma City hospital."

"By reason of his absence from home and association with other boys, Neal began to rely upon her as he had upon his mother. He went to her with his problems, as many boys in the fraternity house went to be with love and school affairs."

He sketched the acquaintance of young Myers and Miss Mills, beginning in the 1932-33 school term, and said: "It became a college romance, a college love affair," he added.

"The evidence will disclose that this beautiful girl was also keeping company with others, and among them was a young man known as Bernard Doud."

Rinehart said Doud, son of an Arkansas minister, who was reported engaged to Miss Mills until shortly before her death, visited the girl while she was vacationing in New Mexico in August of 1933 and that he "was also much in love with her."

KANSAS CITY (UP)—Leroy Anderson, seven weeks old, became intoxicated on whiskey Tuesday, but it was all to a good purpose and just what the doctor ordered.

Leroy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Anderson was slowly starving to death because of a stomach obstruction. A delicate operation was indicated, but because of the baby's age, it could not be given either. So, why was decided upon. An ounce of whiskey was mixed with an ounce of water, and the solution, drop by drop was given Leroy through a tiny sugar-filled sack placed in his mouth.

When the child became intoxicated a local anesthetic was given and the operation performed. Surgeons said the "bangover" would be slight and that Leroy probably would recover.

Arkansas Farm Women Arrive at Camp Pike

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Camp Pike, north of Little Rock, was held by a foreign army Wednesday night but the capital city was in little danger from the 1200 Arkansas farm women quartered there. Miss Connie J. Bunslogle, state home demonstration agent, reported.

Nightfall found practically all of the 1200 women expected for the second annual Arkansas home demonstration camp assigned to cots in national guard tents. Throughout the day they arrived at the camp by bus, train, automobile, wagon and huggies.

Cheerful greetings were the regular uniform for the women campers and they made a bright batchwork pattern among the white tents as the camp was organized Wednesday.

They will get their first taste of "roughing it" Thursday morning, as a bugler calls them to breakfast, the first item on the official program.

Woman Given "Third Degree" for Testifying Before Committee

CHARGES REVENGE

Bitter Fight Raging in Probe of New Orleans Government

NEW ORLEANS.—(AP)—Senator Huey P. Long Thursday threatened to have the state legislature throw out the entire city administration of New Orleans if any more witnesses before his legislative investigating committee are molested.

Before the day's hearing opened, Long said that several witnesses who have testified before the committee inquiring into charges of graft and corruption in the city administration had been arrested by the police and intimidated.

A witness before the committee testified that a woman who appeared before the committee had been arrested by Walmsley's police, given the "third degree" and compelled to retract her testimony.

"This gang stuff can't bluff anybody out of here," Senator Long thundered after the committee moved to take the "necessary action" to protect its witnesses.

Bullets or Firecrackers
As the committee held morning and afternoon sessions on the 18th floor of a downtown skyscraper, there was some commotion uptown in the early morning hours about shooting near Senator Long's palatial home.

Long said he was informed it was firecrackers children were shooting to celebrate "Walmsley's early trip to China." Police said five pistol bullets had been fired at the front of the Long residence.

Long said he wasn't even at home, but a neighbor said the senator had leaned out of a window to yell, "What in the hell's going on down there," before disappearing quickly.

Walmsley commented that if anyone had shot at Senator Long's house, he had done it himself.

"If they did have any shooting," the mayor added, "Long certainly would not have stuck his red nose out of any window, he would have been hiding under a bed. He had to have some excuse for making an army camp out of his front lawn."

National Guardsmen have been guarding the residence since Long rode into New Orleans at the head of the troops last week. A detachment of heavily armed militiamen has accompanied Long in his every move and battalions of soldiers before the committee hearing room.

Would Take Women Workers From Industry

ROME.—(AP)—Benito Mussolini on Wednesday night was reported planning to take all women workers out of Italy's industry.

Two reasons, it was reliably learned influenced his decision.

Jobs, he holds, interfere with what he believes to be woman's primary duty, the building of families and the increase of Italy's population.

The positions women hold should be filled with men, thus decreasing unemployment and raising morale.

An editorial in Mussolini's newspaper, tended to confirm the report that he will move to eliminate women workers.

"The working woman," the newspaper asserted, "creates the problem of population (decrease) as well as that of unemployment."

"Work, even where it is not a direct impediment, interfering with propagation, foments independence and consequent physical and moral habits antithetical to conception."

"The exclusion of women from the field of labor doubtless in many families but a large number of men would find themselves heads and a hundred times more new families would enter the national life."

In commiseration, Thursday on the proposed county salary act for Hempstead Judge H. M. Stephens issued a statement urging the adoption of the bill, asserting that the act would have the county several thousand dollars each year.

Although the Tax Payers League set its salary at $2,700 a year, I'm going to live up to what I promised the voters in my campaign for re-election, and accept only $1,800 a year," Judge Stephens said.

Papers Proposing Salary Act for Sebastian May Be Duplicated

FORT SMITH.—(AP)—An "army" of volunteers was rushed to the front here late Wednesday as County Judge R. P. Strozier opened an offensive to offset the theft of 1,271 signed petitions for submission of the proposed Sebastian county salary act which were stolen from his office.

Judge Strozier announced that the papers, from 14 precincts in the county, had been taken from his office in the courthouse since Saturday night.

On the eve of the final day for filing the petitions, Judge Strozier said he was determined that the effort to reduce county expenses through the act should not be defeated, and immediately called for volunteers to circulate new petitions throughout the county. The volunteers moved rapidly through the downtown section, apparently meeting with success in their efforts.

It was announced that petitions signed by 926 voters remained in Strozier's office. Since 1,465 signatures are required to assure the salary act a place on the November general election ticket, 539 are required to replace the stolen papers.

No Decision On Federal Aid Fund

Arkansas Road Board Adjourns Session to Next Week

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Reaching no decision on the allocation of $3,400,000 of new federal aid construction funds the state highway commission adjourned late Wednesday until Chairman J. S. Cargile calls a meeting on one day next week.

What troubled the commission, it was learned authoritatively, was how to satisfy the suggestion of the federal bureau of roads for spending about half the allotment on closing gaps in main trunk highways and the other half among scores of communities which are clamoring for new roads to the tune of about $35,000,000.

Commissioner Ben Johnson, Fort Smith, was unable to attend, and this was assigned in reliable quarters as one reason for the week's adjournment. Since it was learned that one of the federal bureau's suggestions was the spending of about $250,000 on highway 71 south of Fort Smith—a proposal that was represented as failing to get the hearty and entire approval of the other four commissioners.

To add to the commission's tribulations, several delegations appeared unheralded to urge new projects on the comparatively meager sum available.

Says Arkansas Farm Real Estate On Increase

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—(AP)—For the first time since 1920, Arkansas farm real estate this year increased six per cent over 1933, S. C. Pearce of Russellville, real estate field man for the federal reserve bank at St. Louis, said here Wednesday.

At present prices, an Arkansas farm was said by Pearce to be an excellent investment. He based his statement on estimates made by the bureau of agricultural economics, pointing out that the value of Arkansas farm land this year was indexed at 88 as compared with 222 in 1920, the peak year of state farm land values.

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—A Soviet-American negotiation for a settlement of debts and claims totaling more than $500,000,000 virtually collapsed Thursday as the result of unsatisfactory discussion of terms between Assistant Secretary of State Moore and Alexander Troyanovsky, Soviet ambassador.

On account of the various and uncertain duties of the sheriff, the committee thought it best not to fix a salary for the sheriff and collector, but the fees to be paid him were reduced so that the salary of the sheriff and collector at the present time, after paying the salaries of his deputies and the expense of his office, will not exceed $2,700.

"The salaries of the county judge, assessor, circuit clerk, county clerk, and treasurer, are all fixed at $2,700 each."

"The salary of the county judge is now $3,000, but I have been drawing only $1,800 salary since I have been in office, and I will continue to draw only $1,800 salary during the remainder of the present term and during the next term, of office, regardless of whether this act is adopted or not."

Proposed Salary Act Is Filed Here

1,079 Signatures Attached to Hempstead Bill—Will Be Voted On

Hempstead county's proposed salary act was filed late Wednesday with County Clerk Arthur Anderson with 1,079 signatures attached to it, practically double the necessary amount for submission to the voters in the November 6 election.

The proposed act was drawn up here Saturday at a meeting of the Tax Payers League. Thirty-one petitions were circulated over the county Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Approximately 500 signatures would have been sufficient to have the salary act placed on the ballot in the November election for adoption into law or rejection.

The act would place county officials on a salary basis instead of fees and commissions, saving the county approximately $5,000 a year.

Under the proposed bill the offices of county judge, county and probate clerk, circuit clerk, treasurer and tax assessor, would be placed on an annual salary basis of $2,700 each.

These offices with the exception of the county judge and the treasurer would be allowed one deputy at a salary of $1,200.

The sheriff's office will remain on the fee system, with a reduction in fees.

By Associated Press
Voters in 20 Arkansas counties had decided Thursday to follow three pioneering counties which two years ago initiated local salary acts to govern compensation and fees of their officers.

Efforts were being made in four other counties to obtain the required number of signatures to petitions to insure a vote on the proposed acts in the general election November 6. Thursday is the last day for file petitions.

In Sebastian county, volunteer workers were circulating petitions to replace petitions bearing more than 1,200 names that were stolen from the office of county judge.

Greene and Ouachita counties were intent on obtaining sufficient signatures to get petitions on time.

Among counties in which acts have already been initiated include Clark, Faulkner, Perry, Sevier.

MEMPHIS.—(AP)—The state tobacco tax revenue from Memphis and Shelby county may be practically wiped out as the result of plans of Memphis wholesale dealers to set up a supply depot in Arkansas to meet competition from interstate dealers.

R. O. Downie, leader of the tobacco industry in Memphis, announced on Thursday that a group of wholesale dealers will open a cigarette depot in West Memphis, Arkansas to supply Memphis smokers with cigarettes by the carton, minus a four-cent package tax in Tennessee.

Sheriff and collector, $2,000 plus actual expenses of deputies, two deputies at $900 a year each and 50 cents a day for feeding prisoners.

Stephens Urges Adoption of Salary Act

In commiseration, Thursday on the proposed county salary act for Hempstead Judge H. M. Stephens issued a statement urging the adoption of the bill, asserting that the act would have the county several thousand dollars each year.

Although the Tax Payers League set its salary at $2,700 a year, I'm going to live up to what I promised the voters in my campaign for re-election, and accept only $1,800 a year," Judge Stephens said.

His statement concerning the proposed bill follows:
"An act fixing the salaries and compensations to be paid to the county officers has been initiated and will be voted on at the next general election on Tuesday, November 6, 1934. This entire act will be published in the Hope Star once a week until election. You are urged to read and study this act, and to vote for it.

"This act was agreed upon, and the salaries and compensation of the various officers as set forth therein were fixed by a committee of representative men from all parts of the county. I think the salaries of the officers as fixed by this act are still too high and there was a difference of opinion among the members of the committee, but the salaries as fixed were finally agreed upon by the committee.

"Although the salaries are too high, still they are less than the compensation and salaries to which the various officers are now entitled under the law. If this act is adopted, it will save the county several thousand dollars annually, and I hope you will vote and work for the adoption of the act.

Cash Basis for County Seen
"On account of the low assessed value of the property and the decrease in the amount of taxes collected, we will not be able to keep the county on a cash basis and our script will be selling below par if the act is not adopted.

"We will also have insufficient funds to make the necessary appropriations for the poor and needy patients in the Booneville Hospital, as well as the poor and needy patients in our local hospitals.

On account of the various and uncertain duties of the sheriff, the committee thought it best not to fix a salary for the sheriff and collector, but the fees to be paid him were reduced so that the salary of the sheriff and collector at the present time, after paying the salaries of his deputies and the expense of his office, will not exceed $2,700.

"The salaries of the county judge, assessor, circuit clerk, county clerk, and treasurer, are all fixed at $2,700 each."

Your Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

When You Have Fever, First Get to Bed!

As soon as you discover you have fever, get to bed!

The presence of fever indicates that you are sick and that your body is engaged in a conflict with toxic substances. No matter how insignificant the fever may be at the beginning, it may gradually get worse.

The experience of many centuries shows that complete rest is a great aid to the body in fighting off infection or poison. Complete rests involves more than going to bed.

Under the most favorable circumstances, someone must be at hand to take care of the patient.

He must not even get up to attend to the wants of nature. He must be kept comfortable by proper ventilation, and at the same time protected against chilling as a result of drafts.

He must be bathed regularly while in bed. Under such circumstances it is necessary to have rubber sheeting and to change bed linens. Sometimes a rubbing with alcohol, and powdering, will help to keep his skin in good condition and even to cheer him up.

Obviously such nursing is an important factor in recovery from diseases and it represents a considerable expense, if not in money, in the time and services of someone in the family.

Furthermore, anyone who is seriously sick should have mental rest. Mental rest means avoidance of worry, avoidance of attention to important problems of business, and avoidance of arguments with the family.

Mental rest means mental relaxation, but not complete inactivity of the mind. Sometimes the development of suitable interests in the form of occupational therapy is helpful to the minds of those who are sick.

However, excitement and anxiety must be eliminated.

Sleep is of utmost importance. As a rule, people with fever do not sleep well or for long periods of time. Therefore, they should be permitted to sleep as much during the day as they can, and sleep at night may be helped by administration of suitable remedies. To encourage sleep, you should demand absolute quiet and remove lights and other irritations to the senses.

The person with fever nowadays must be fed suitably so wastage of his body tissues may be overcome, and he must also have plenty of fluids. The fluids must be given so often that they will quench the patient's thirst, keep his tongue moist, and his skin soft.

Some patients prefer carbonated fluids as more efficiently quenching their thirsts. It has also been found that administration of carbonated waters helps to effect more rapid absorption of the water.

However, carbonated waters should not be given to patients whose stomachs or abdomens are distended with gases. Neither should they be given in cases where there is a weakness of the heart.

The real test as to whether the patient is getting adequate amounts of fluids is the amount of secretion from the kidneys and the character of the fluid secreted.

Max Miller Writes Another Good Book—This One's a Record of His Life in the Suburbs

By BRUCE CATTON

Max Miller has told us about his job as waterfront reporter, and about his childhood in a northwest coast lumber town; now, in "The Second House from the Corner," he tells of his experiences as a suburban householder.

Once again he makes a book out of the materials that most of us never think twice about—the little incidents of every-day life that are utterly insignificant until you look at them in just the right way, when they suddenly become mysterious signs and portents which somehow cast light on the whole riddle of human existence.

He builds a house, chats amiably with his neighbors, looks disapprovingly at the obnoxious human beings who pop to the surface at a bathing beach, helps rescue a cabin cruiser that has gone aground, day-dreams on the empty sands, leads money to an old college chum, undergoes an operation at a hospital, wonders if his wife is going to present him with a son

Walter comes in and says: "Look at this big bear, Mom. Ain't it a beauty?"

"Yes, it certainly is, dear. Where did you get it?"

Walter giggles. "Swiped it. Old Joe was waiting on somebody so I picked it up. Here, taste it—ain't that prime, eh?"

"You didn't! Don't tell me a son of mine would steal. Oh, Walter, you ought to be ashamed. I'm going to tell your father. Take it back at once and tell Joe you're sorry."

"Aw, Mom, it was only in fun. Joe don't care. He often gives me things when I go down to buy something for you. I was just havin' some fun."

"Take it right back. You are a thief. I'm thoroughly disgusted with you."

Walter walks off, eats his pear on Slim's porch, and goes home again.

More Trouble

His mother told his father and his father raised particular cain. For the rest of the day Walter heard about his crime. He knew he was wrong but some way felt that parents did take things awfully hard sometimes.

If they had just said, "That's wrong, kid," he would have caught the idea just the same.

Next day he said, "Say, Mom! I dropped that library book over the bridge."

"What?"

"Well, I couldn't help it, could I? Slim dared me to walk the rail and I had to do it didn't I? And the book slipped."

Walter Smith! You walked that rail on the bridge! What next? I declare, you worry me so I could cry. You'll be dragged in dead—some day."

Price—One Pair of Shoes

"Oh, I can swim and it ain't high. You get all worried over nothin'. I got the old book anyway. Slim and I went down on the bank and took off our clothes and went in the creek. It ain't deep. I just dove down about a yard. Will I have to pay for it?"

"Yes, you will. Or I will. It means that after slaving all week for a new pair of shoes, I've got to spend the money for your carelessness. And besides, you like to torment and tease me with all the dangerous things you do. I declare, some days I wish I was dead. You're nothing but a worry. Every time you come near me you have some terrible tale about what you've done. This time you will get a whipping as sure as you are born."

She was a good prophet.

Boy at Experimental Age

It was true. Walter was at the experimental age when he tried everything, not as crime, but as a way of getting us people's reactions. The age, it is, that tries patience to the limit.

He learned. He learned that the horror of parents can be avoided by not telling them things at all. So he went his way and experimented to his heart's taste and kept silent.

He never recovered the candor of the old days. He learned to go to others with his problems and mistakes but never to his parents.

Walter needed to be told and set straight. But if he had been spared such shocked demonstrations and talked to seriously and more unemotionally, he would have continued in his confiding.

It is something to think about, this scaring of children into secrecy by tactics calculated to repel, not only misbehavior, but its perpetrator, also.

One of the strangest wills on record is that of M. Auguste Pasquier, who had it engraved on a leaf of one of his chairs.

and heir; does, in short, the inconsequential things that all the rest of us do, and contrives to reveal them in carefully written prose, as events of significance.

Just what the trick of it is I know not. It is a matter of the eye and the hand, probably; he sees things more directly than the rest of us, and knows how to put his findings down on paper most skillfully.

Whatever it may be, he has written another noteworthy book—detached, ironic, unemotional and eminently readable.

Published by Dutton, the book is priced at $2.50.

BEACH CLUB GIRL

BEGIN HERE TODAY
ROOTS RAEBURN, 19 and pretty, is enabled by wealthy SYLVIA RIVERS. Due to Sylvia's gossip, Boots is forced to resign from the Junior. Both girls live in Larchmont, fashionable New York suburb.

Hurt and humiliated, Boots accepts the attentions of RUSSELL LUND, swimming instructor. RUSSELL returns from a trip out of town and Boots dreads her mother's hearing what has happened. On impulse she marries Russ who takes her to live with his brother and his wife. Russ has no job and apparently no ambition. Soon Boots begins to see him as he is.

Russ goes to Miami, promising Boots he will send for her later. She gets a job in a big department store. One wet, cold night she reaches home, feeling ill and discouraged. A customer's $10 bill has been lost and Boots is held responsible.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXV
"SHE'S a very sick girl," the doctor said to the dark young man, braced against the distempered wall of Mrs. Mooney's sitting room. "She ought to have a nurse."

"I don't know..."

"She can have a nurse," the dark young man stated coldly and with firmness. "Get one. Twenty-four hour duty?"

"I know a good girl. She worked under me on a case like this last winter," the gray, plump professional man told him. "You're her brother?"

"Just a friend," said the dark young man. "I know her family. I only discovered last night we were living in the same house."

"Ah, I see," the doctor, drawing on his big driving gloves, eyed the younger man with interest. "You'll have the nurse come right over then?"

"Within an hour. May I use this telephone?"

IN the dim, untidy room Boots slept in a stupor. Her skin burned with the raw flush of fever. She scarcely knew where she was when she woke, except at dim intervals. In her dreams it seemed to her that she was in her own room at home with the thin, delicately darning curtains blowing at the white windows and October roses blooming just beneath them.

But when she came back to consciousness, which was only occasionally, she saw the outlines of the gray square of bureau and the gray square of window beyond it. Trucks jolted over the cobblestones and arches cried in the streets below and taxi horns honked, hooped incessantly. Beyond in the narrow streets edging the river, fog horns boomed with dreary regularity.

There was something—she couldn't remember just now—that troubled her. Something about a $10 bill and a tall, stern faced young man at Lucy's. She had the feeling she had been about it in her sleep, but maybe she was wrong. It was all dreamlike. Even the cool hands of the girl in white, laid on her feverish brow and wrist, were the hands of a dream angel.

People came and went in this dream. Although Boots was aware of it the small square room was scrupulously tidy now, with the tidiness of a hospital room. Clean scarf on the bureau. Clean patched spread twitched four-square over the thin blankets. Tumbler and spoon—everything shiner. Tumbled clothes hung behind the screen out of sight.

On the morning of the sixth day the doctor, straightening his plump back, folding the stethoscope carefully and tucking it into his pocket, allowed himself a smile. Two, in fact. One for the nurse and another for the dark young man whose eyes had been searching his face.

"She'll do," he said, benignly. "She'll do very nicely."

Boots slept under their combined scrutiny. She looked thin. The fine bones of her small face stood out sharply in the rock-gray dimness of the room. A shaded bulb burned dimly over the table.

The dark young man followed the doctor out into the hall.

"That was a close shave," the older man said affably, shrugging his big shoulders into his coat. "She had a peculiarly virulent type..."

He went on, discoursing learnedly of the habits and curiosities of influenza and the dark young man listened, nodding occasionally, unsmiling.

"Well, well, I'll look in tomorrow. She's coming along splendidly, my boy. Lucky girl to have such a friend standing by?"

You could see he waited for, expected a burst of confidence but none was forthcoming so he went out briskly.

CHURCH bells awoke Boots from her deep slumbers. She opened her eyes reluctantly, drowsily as a child does. Sunday? Why, it couldn't be Sunday! She frowned, remembering. That gray Monday and the customer who had lost the money. Coming home in the rain to find that dreadful telegram...

"Oh, I must get up..." Her hand groped for the bedside lamp but she was startled to find it was already alight and a girl with red curls and a nurse's cap was smiling down at her.

"Want anything, child?"

"I—I have to send a telegram." The nurse smiled and said in a soothing voice, "Later, perhaps. Just now you have nothing to do but to lie here and get well."

"How long have I been ill?"

"Nearly a week, dear. But you're all right now. You're splendid!" Boots' eyes filled. She was splendid. But Russ, with his strong body, lay still in death. What was it the wire had said?

"Russell Lund killed in motorboat accident this afternoon. Wire instructions..."

And she had fainted. She had fainted Russ, finally and wholly.

"My husband," she began faintly...

Preparation In Ramikins Keeps Fish In Most of Its Savory States BY MARY E. DAGUE NEA Staff Service Writer

Salmon is one of the good old stand-bys that you can keep on the pantry shelf at all times for use in emergencies and on days when you don't go marketing. It's delicious, fresh, of course, but canned salmon is more available to most of us at all seasons of the year and it is so good and versatile in its uses that if we make the most of its possibilities we almost never grow tired of it.

One of the nicest ways to serve salmon, fresh or canned, is in individual ramikins. The sauce adds moisture to

Tomorrow's Menu
BREAKFAST: Cereal cooked with dates, pears, cream, waffles, honey, milk and coffee.

LUNCHEON: Tomato bullion, toast Melba, cottage cheese and green pepper salad, stuffed baked apples with whipped cream, milk and tea.

DINNER: Cream of corn soup, toasted crackers, salmon in ramikins, baked squash, buttered new turnips, home made pickles, poor man's rice pudding, milk and coffee.

a naturally dry fish and the dish is appealing and attractive.

There are so many irresistible ramikins priced to suit all purses from fat to thin that if you have none now it is a good time to invest in a set of from four to eight. You will use them for innumerable purposes. Not only can you bake in them but you can use them for molds for salads and desserts.

However, to go back to the salmon. If you want to use fresh salmon, par-boil it before using in the following recipe. If wine is not wanted use the juice of one lemon. Instead of shallots use 1 teaspoon minced onion or one tablespoon minced chives.

One and one-half pounds salmon, 2 tablespoons butter, 6 shallots, 2 teaspoons minced parsley, 1-2 glass white wine, 1 cup diced potato, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1 cup water.

Chop shallots very fine and brown in butter until tender. Add wine or lemon juice and parsley when shallots have cooked five minutes. Add salmon broken in coarse pieces and simmer five minutes. Add potato, salt and pepper and water and cook 15 or 20 minutes, until potatoes are tender. Put in ramikins and sprinkle with capers before serving.

This dish can be kept hot for some time if the ramikins are placed in a pan of hot water, covered with buttered paper and put into a moderate oven. Do not add capers until ready to serve.

A salmon salad will be liked for some hot September noon. Serve it with hot Parker-house rolls or cornmeal muffins.

One pound salmon, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 teaspoon mustard, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon of flour, yolks of 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 3-4 cup milk, 4 tablespoons cold water.

Pick over oven and remove skin and bones. Separate in flakes. Sprinkle with lemon juice. Mix and sift flour, salt mustard, sugar, and pepper. Beat egg yolks slightly with milk and add with melted butter to dry ingredients. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Add vinegar slowly, stirring, and gelatin which has soaked in cold water for five minutes. Stir until gelatin is dissolved and remove from fire. Fold in salmon and turn into individual molds. Let stand on ice until chilled and firm. Unmold on lettuce and serve with a border of cucumber slices on the base of each mold.

THE NEWS REVIEW

the part of some empty-headed girl.

William Collins, head of the Cook county highway police in Illinois, believers that neckers and mangers cause more fatal traffic accidents than do drunken drivers.

Engaged couples, he says, engage in the traditional by-play of engaged couples as they drive along the road.
Being thus occupied they fail to watch their driving closely. Presently, bang—and there's another smashup.

With married folk it often works the other way. They quarrel, as married folk occasionally do, get all wrapped up in the quarrel, forget all the hazards of traffic and again, there's another smashup on the highways.

The moral seems to be that any activity which diverts any part of the motorist's attention from the job of driving is likely to have serious consequences.

outpunch the puncher. I'm going to keep so everlastingly on top of him throwing leather that he'll never have a chance to do anything but duck and block. I'm going to fight him this manager. My offense will be my defense."

"I know he can't hurt me," he said,
"and I know too what he also knows —that I've got youth and stamina and he hasn't any more. I think I'll knock him out this time in one of the late rounds."

As he went through his last boxing workout here, Ross was the answer to a fight manager's prayer. His shoulder and arm muscles seemed pounds heavier than in April and he scaled 139½ pounds, a hint that his days as a genuine lightweight are numbered. He hits harder, sharper and he's a cunning dynamo of activity.

Chaplin Still Richest Person in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. — (AP) — Charley Chaplin remains the wealthiest in Hollywood's film colony.

Greta Garbo has an $80 automobile compared with Joan Crawford's $2010
one.

Will Rogers is the largest land owner. Harold Lloyd has the costliest furniture.

These are some of the facts about the private affairs of the movie folk in the records of the county tax collector and the county auditor.

All the figures are assessed valuations. The actual value may be much higher.

The comedian who can't be moved to make a talkie after the use of a cane, derby, baggy pants and funny shoes raised him from poverty to riches has property assessed at $3,- 279,230.

Greta Garbo's record on the assessor's rolls is about as sparse as her interviews, which are nil.

The rolls show two things listed for the elusive Swede, who is reported to be getting a salary of $10,000 a week.
The items listed as her property are an $80 auto and $55,100 in bonds.

YOU are a charming sort of lad,
And I perforce agree
You have too fine a fair for love
To practice constancy.

A GIRL, whose feet have dancing ways
Is someone to pursue
Until you've caught her in swift arms—
At least, that's what you do.

AND why with wanton charms about
You still come back to me,
Consistently, my dearest one,
Remains a mystery!

BLUE eyes hold fond allure for you
Until you make them say
A little speech of pretty love
You never look away.

AND any time a gipsy maid
Turns round to smile at you,
You are not satisfied until You've begged a kiss or two.

Shooting of Columbo Is Held Accidental

LOS ANGELES. — (AP) — In abrupt grief, Lansing V. Brown, Jr., portrait photographer to many film stars, heard himself exonerated by a coroner's jury of all blame for the death of his best friend, Russ Columbo.
The jury had listened to Brown's story of what occurred in his study last Sunday afternoon. It had examined the old duelling pistol which sent a bullet into the singer's head while Brown was exhibiting it to him.
And when the inquest ended, the jury found that Columbo, 26, "came to his death from a gunshot wound in the head inflicted by an old pistol in the hand of Lansing Brown Jr. We find the shooting to have been accidental and exonerate Brown from all blame."

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

Text: II Chronicles 30:1-9, 13
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for September 6.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

In the background of the prophetic utterances of Amos, Hosea, and Micah we have seen the failure of a people to live right lives and to establish justice and truth in their social and national living.

If we have throughout history the tragic evidences of failure in personal and social life, we have, also, thank God, the record of great eras when men were aroused to a sense of their condition, and when, under divine influence and prophetic leadership, they purged their souls from sin and re-established life upon the higher plane.

It is one of these great epochs, or movement star reform, with which our lesson deals. It was the time of the Passover, a time sacred in the life and tradition of Israel that marked essentially God's protection and guidance of the people and his choice of them to serve his purposes.

Yet the priests themselves, who ought to have been leading in that celebration, were not sufficiently sanctified--a lack of ceremonial purification that, possibly symbolized a condition of heart.

It was under these circumstances that Hezekiah rallied the leaders of Israel and Judah to Jerusalem with the people that they might observe the Passover in sincerity and in repentance.

So the message went forth from the king and his supporters throughout all Israel and Judah, from Dan to Beersheba; that is, from the most northern city to the most southern. It was a message of appeal to the people to turn to the Lord and to consecrate themselves to the rebuilding of the nation in righteousness and truth.

It was a time of humiliation, when the nation had suffered defeat in war and when many had been carried off into captivity by conquering Assyria.

In his message to the people, Hezekiah reminds them of these things. He assures them that evil has fallen upon the nation because of the sinfulness of their fathers.

He appeals to those who had pursued their own perverse way, but to sanctify themselves and to serve the Lord. Along with this Hezekiah assures the people of the Lord's graciousness and mercy, that he will not turn his face away from those who will turn to him and who seek his blessing.

The message had its effect. Multitudes of people came to keep the feast of unleavened bread, ready and willing to respond to the call of a new crusade.

It is the capacity for repentance, for retracing the ways where he has gone astray; it is the fact that God never casts away those who will turn to him, upon which we build the hope of mankind.

The world has never reached so dark a condition of degradation and seeming despair but the divine spark in man has fanned a flame of new life and idealism.

The influences that created a revival in Israel are powerful to create a revival again whenever and wherever prophetic leaders can set them at work.

A member of the Quebec House of Commons, Miss Agnes Macphail, has advised women to get ready to go in to their legislatures and congresses because they are every bit as smart as men.

El Dorado Goes 'Ga Ga' Over Rowe

Plan Special Train to World Series to See Schoolboy

EL DORADO, Ark.—(U.P.)—El Dorado is on a baseball boom.

The town has gone "ga ga" over the meteoric climb of its favorite son, Lynnwood T. (Schoolboy) Rowe, to baseball's hall of fame. Dusty bulletin boards have been wiped off and whenever Rowe pitches for the Detroit Tigers fans crowd about them.

Ever since Rowe hit his winning streak that took him to 10 straight victories to tie the American League record, El Dorado has been baseball-conscious. When word of the record-making game reached here fans ran up and down the streets of this otherwise decorous city, shouting the news that "Schoolboy has knocked 'em cold again."

Pictures of the strapping 22-year-old pitcher appeared by dozens in store windows. Enthusiastic signs were plastered. One enterprising newspaper stand operator displayed:

"Schoolboy wins, read 'em and weep!"

Beside that sign were pictures of Rowe and Miss Edna Mary Skinner of El Dorado, who will become Mrs. Rowe when the world series is over this fall. Their engagement was announced after Rowe's 15th victory.

Newspaper sales have exceeded those for any of the Dillinger and Burrow desperado forays.

Recent Hillbilly Stories

One thing the people here don't like is the imaginary stories of Eastern sports writers about Schoolboy. Rowe is no Ozark hillbilly. He didn't leave an Ozark diet of "hominy grits and hoe cake" to play Moses for the Detroit Tigers. He wasn't 20 years old before he ever saw a uniformed baseball team, and he didn't learn to pitch by throwing rocks at crows in his fictitious hill country home.

As a matter of fact his home town of El Dorado is a city of nearly 20,000 inhabitants in the Southern Arkansas oil fields some 200 miles from the Ozark mountains. He has been pitching ball since he wore knee pants and never shy at the bright lights of the city's whiteway.

Schoolboy has been sort of a favorite ever since his high school days when he won about all the state athletic honors offered. He was all-state football quarterback, all-state basketball center, all-state interscholastic golf champion, won the state track meet single-handed at Conway, and was an amateur boxer of no little repute.

In 1931 he played independent ball with a Bostrop, La., papermill team then advanced to the Texas League where he played for a year before going with the Tigers.

Arrangements are being made for a special train to take the fans here to the world series and indications are that more residents will make the trip to see their favorite son pitch than Section 11. Sections 12, 13, 14, and 15 of this act have no reference to the Sheriff and ex-officio Tax Collector, since this act does not place him on a salary.

Section 12. All salaries provided for in this Act, unless otherwise provided, are annual salaries and shall be paid in monthly installments by the name of the officer or deputy verified claim filed with the County Clerk, but no such claim shall be allowed or warrant issued until sufficient fees for such office have been earned and collected and paid to the county treasurer to pay the same; and thereupon warrants shall be issued for any months in arrears in said first year, to be paid out of said fees so earned, collected and paid to the county treasurer. If the fees and compensation earned and collected during any fiscal year by any officer who, by law, is required to charge and collect fees or other compensation for services rendered, shall be insufficient to pay in full the compensation and salary provided by this act, then and in that event the salary of such officer and deputy shall be reduced ratably and alike in proportion to the earned and collected revenues of said office.

Section 13. All county officers whose salaries are fixed by this Act, except those receiving no fees, shall charge and collect, for the use and benefit of the County, the same fees, costs, commissions, perquisites and compensation as are now or hereafter required or permitted by law to be charged by such officer for such services. All sums so earned shall be public funds, the property of the County, and the collecting officer shall receive same as trustee for the County. The said fees and other compensation shall be collected in each instance in advance of the rendition of the said services, and each officer shall be charged in his settlements with all sums so earned by or accruing to the office whether collected or not; provided, however, that when bond for costs is tendered and accepted or sufficient cash deposit is made in lieu of bond for costs in any contested matter or action, in any of the courts, the clerk may carry the accruing costs as uncollected fees until the matter or action is concluded but, in no event longer than sixty days after final conclusion of said matter or action. Each such officer shall, between the first and fifth of each month, render in duplicate a duly verified report of all sums earned by the office during the preceding month, showing in detail the sources and amounts of said earnings, one copy of which shall be filed with the County Treasurer and the other with the County Clerk, and the reporting officer shall then pay to the County Treasurer all sums so earned and reported.

Section 14. The County Treasurer shall keep a separate and correct account of funds received from each officer herein named and no part of such funds shall be transferred to any other fund or account until and unless the sums credited thereto shall in the aggregate exceed the annual salary of said officer, and his deputy or deputies and such expenses as are herein fixed and authorized for the current fiscal year. In the event any officer whose duty it is to file such report and pay into the treasury the receipts and revenues of his office for the preceding month as defined in this act shall fail or refuse to do so, it shall be the duty of the Treasurer, within five days, to report such fact in writing to the County Judge, Circuit Judge and Prosecuting Attorney.

Section 15. Each county officer whose salary is fixed by this Act except those receiving no fees, shall keep in a well-bound book an itemized daily statement of all sums earned by the office for services rendered, showing therein the nature of the respective services rendered and the sums accruing therefor. At the end of each month said officer shall make and add to said statement the totals of each page and of the whole sums so earned during said month, and shall attach to the said statement his certificate under oath that the said totals represent the full, true and correct amounts of all fees, costs, commissions, perquisites and compensation or other revenues earned by his office from all sources whatsoever during the said month. The system of keeping such books, the books to be kept and the form of statements to be made, shall first be approved by the State Auditor Department or officer whose duty it will be to audit the books and reports of such officers. Said statements shall be open at all times to public inspection. The said officers shall, at the expiration of their terms of office, deliver the said books to the County Clerk, who shall preserve the same as a public record.

Section 16. Any and all purchases or contracts for supplies or equipment necessary for the conduct of the several county offices and institutions shall hereafter be made by the County Court, in the open market, upon invited bids and in each instance from the lowest responsible bidder. In case of emergency or immediate need, supplies or equipment may be purchased or contracted for in amounts not exceeding $25.00 in the aggregate in any one month without first inviting bids therefor. The County Clerk, upon requisition of each county officer, who shall furnish all stationery, books, records, stamps, furniture and equipment, and other supplies and facilities requisite for the proper conduct of the respective offices and institutions, except as otherwise herein provided.

Section 17. After all salaries and expense claims have been paid, as provided in this Act, the surplus, if any, at the end of the fiscal year, shall be transferred to the County General Fund.

Section 18. The various provisions and parts of this Act are hereby declared to be severable, and if any provision or part should be declared unconstitutional by a court of last resort, the same shall not invalidate or affect the remainder of the Act.

Section 19. All laws and parts of laws in conflict herewith shall be and they are hereby repealed and this Act shall be and become effective on January 1, 1935.

Said petitions appear to be in form required by law and are signed by the requisite number of qualified electors.

Therefore, notice is hereby given that the question of adopting or rejecting said proposed Initiative Act will be referred to the people in the manner provided by law, at the next General Election to be held on November 6, 1934, and will appear on the official ballots in the following term:

BEST TONIC FOR WOMEN

Due to its tonic and purifying effect on the blood, women will find in Mendenhall's Malaria, Chill and Fever Tonic with Arsenic an excellent remedy for use in various ailments peculiar to their sex, as shown by the medicinal properties of Arsenic set forth in the United States Dispensatory, a book prepared by a committee of leading physicians and druggists of the U. S., and which describes the properties of all drugs used in prescriptions and defines the strength and dosage of medicines, according to law in this country.

This book lists the principal effects of Arsenic, as follows:

- (1) Stimulation of nutrition—body building.
- (2) Tonic and purifying action on the blood—thereby improving all bodily functions.
- (3) Clearing and bleaching the skin—thus eradicating blemishes and improving the complexion, and through its alternative effect, of great value in the treatment of certain skin diseases.
- (4) Beneficial in the treatment of bronchitis, particularly the chronic type frequently found in the aged, and in many cases of asthma.
- (5) In chronic wasting diseases, such as tuberculosis or in certain types of nervous debility with malnutrition, arsenic is one of the most powerful remedies we possess. It is one of the very few substances which really deserve the name of "general tonic", since it increases both the weight and strength of the patient.
- (6) In regard to malaria the Dispensatory states "Arsenic is the most successful agent in the treatment of chronic malaria, intermittent or malarial fevers, chronic chills, brow ache, neuralgia, headache or rheumatism due to malaria or general bad health."

A BRAND NEW SEASON

SEPTEMBER marks the opening of a brand-new season in this business of running one's life. Back home—back to work—back to school. Time to take stock of most everything, isn't it? What's needed for the house, for the children, for yourself? . . . At least a dozen spending decisions to be made very soon.

How about choosing a school for the youngsters? (It's not too late even now.) And school equipment, too—pen-and-pencil set, typewriter? Then don't forget new linens ad towels for the house—and bathroom supplies, of course. Perhaps the pantry wants restocking. And you are going to redecorate at least one room, aren't you?

Whatever your needs, the advertising pages of this newspaper will help you decide wisely and spend wisely. You can depend on advertised goods and services . . . for if they didn't represent pretty worth-while values, the sponsors couldn't keep on advertising and selling! ### WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and mawk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, laxative candy or chewing gum. And expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food won't digest. It just decays in the bowels. It takes three days to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely. But don't take for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Beware of a substitute. 25-cent drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

New Farm Relief Policy Is Outlined

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Inauguration of a policy which will "put farmers on their own feet" rather than allow them to rely on government agencies now that the drought has been broken marked a conference of relief officials here Tuesday.

The conference was presided over by T. Roy Reid director of drought relief for Arkansas, who said instructions would be sent immediately to county agents, ERA workers and others. All relief agencies will co-operate in an effort to return drought area farmers to self sustaining basis as soon as possible, said Reid.

E. B. Whitaker, in charge of the cattle purchasing program in the drought area, reported to the conference that 40,325 head of cattle had been purchased from 9,101 producers. The state's present quota is approximately 100,000 head.

Ice Cream Piped "By the Mile" Brings Its Inventor $1,000 a Day

Clarence W. Vogt, a Refrigeration Engineer, Got Ideas From Cantankerous Refrigeration Pipes, Which Is Making Him a Fortune

NEW YORK.—(AP)—When paper for lining tobacco tins stuck together and a pipe froze, Clarence W. Vogt laid the foundation for an income of $1,000 a day.

That's what he said. "One thousand dollars a day." And just a year ago he was struggling along on $100 a day making ice cream by the foot instead of by the gallon.

Vogt, born in Louisville, Ky., studied refrigeration engineering at Cornell university. About seven years ago he was working in his own plant in Louisville when a large tobacco company found it couldn't keep the half-block-long sheets of waxed paper for tobacco tins from sticking together in hot weather.

They called Vogt. He fixed that with refrigeration. And then the tobacco company asked him to fix some other little things in a plant manufacturing small bricks of ice cream.

Vogt remedied that trouble, too. Then he tried to change the age-old process for making ice cream, a delicacy the Romans are said to have made using snow for refrigeration.

Tries Flakes

Ice cream for years has been made in batches. The mixture was poured into a freezer, paddled, poured out and frozen solid. But sometimes the batches varied in quality, and the process took time.

Vogt tried making it, among other ways, in flakes—like snow—and putting it into cakes that way. One day the refrigerated pipe which carried the mixture to the snow-making point froze . . . too much brine around the pipe.

But the frozen ice cream mixture in the pipe was good to eat, Vogt found, and that started him on his new idea. Today his patented process makes ice cream by the mile in pipes—one continuous process instead of in batches. Ice cream ingredients are poured into the pipe, mixed, frozen, forced out under pressure in long rolls, chopped off in small pieces, wrapped and delivered.

Vogt says ice cream made his way is technically superior because its quality can be controlled. His process is guarded through licenses from the original idea of making it to the time the finished product reaches the consumer in small packaged rolls.

He figures a 25 per cent saving in power and refrigeration over the old method for making bulk ice cream, no saving in the finished product because of other costs which are higher, and a 20 per cent final saving between his product delivered wrapped and bulk ice cream delivered in the same manner.

100 Miles A Day

The first plant using his system was opened in Detroit in 1932, and now the plants using his system have a total capacity of 100 miles of ice cream a day, about seven feet to the gallon. Vogt figures a potential capacity peak of 1,750,000,000 feet a year.

The ice cream end of his business is well under way, he believes, and he is turning his attention to using his piping process for butter, cold cream, hard and other such mixtures. He is working out those ideas in his small shop in Greenwich, Conn.

Among the latest is a cardboard package for ice cream, butter and other commodities which can be removed and sliced instead of taking off the lid and digging out the contents, with his package the side is simply ripped open to expose the entire commodity.

Mount Erapuca, in the Copal Zone of the Honduras, is sinking at an alarming rate. Agriculture on the sides of the mountain is being ruined and already more than 625 acres of cornfields have disappeared.

Wins Swim at $333 a Mile

Plowing through the cold waters of Lake Erie in comparatively slow time, Marvin Nelson, Port Dodge, Ia., swimmer, won the Toronto 15-mile marathon swim for the third time in four years. Nelson had a lead of more than a mile on his nearest competitor when he crossed the finish line. The winner, who pocketed $5000, is shown inset in the field that started.

Agua Caliente, which was Tijuana putting on the dog, has folded.

No winter meeting for the first time in 14 years.

Agua Caliente held up surprisingly well after the crash. But repeat did it no good, and with pari-mutual betting legal in California, open gambling is the only thing the $2,000,000 plant below the border has to offer the good people of the sun-kissed slope that they cannot get at home. And the chances are they don't have to look very long if they care to flirt with games of chance and spinning wheels.

The new Los Angeles Turf Club's course on the estate of the late Lucky Baldwin, at Arcadia, hereafter will be the headquarters of the motion picture colony's race-agers.

The Santa Anita Handicap there on February 23 takes the place of the old Agua Caliente, formerly the Croffroth, as the world's richest stake.

And with 155 racing days in California, Tijuana can go back to sleep. The little ranch-like village down there at the end of the trail can rest just as peacefully as it did until James Wood Croffroth put it on the map in 1915.

The palatial track, clubhouse, casino and hotel at Agua Caliente stand as monuments to prohibition, anti-racing legislation, and the golden and giddy days.

It Was Croffroth's Idea

Tijuana's passing is just as well, but there's many an interesting story in connection with its 18-year run.

The border is closed to racing, but its romance rides on. There's the tale of Croffroth, perhaps the smartest sports promoter of his time, looking for something to turn to when boxing was bootlegged out of his native state, and arriving in Tijuana with an idea and a shoestring. And prying that into a million or more.

Croffroth, always a man of vision, was against the expansion at Agua Caliente in 1929. He was keen to invest important money where the Mexican government raised the taxes with each big turnout, and realized what respect and favorable racing legislation in the north would do to his venture.

So, while Croffroth retained some interest at Agua Caliente, he and two or three others who started with him got out in time—Sunshine Jim, for one, with enough to retire.

But undoubtedly the most colorful figure connected with the high rolling activities on the two banks of the dry river bed that is the Tijuana was James Nugent Croffroth, one of the principal owners and general manager of the Agua Caliente layout. Croffroth was a poor farm boy at Hood River, Ore., and the only horses he saw before hitting the border were attached to plows.

He wound up with more than a million, a major interest in the Agua Caliente establishment, gambling concessions, and a string of thoroughbred horses. It was Croffroth who interested Joe Schenck and other picture people when it was decided that Agua Caliente was to be America's Deauville.

The Man on the Horse

I sat in a New York hotel room with a group of racing men in the summer of 1929. General Abelardo Rodriguez, then governor of Baja California, was there in disguise. He had come east with Croffroth, who was canvassing owners with a view to having them ship to Agua Caliente for the $100,000 handicap the following March, and other fixtures.

Victorino collected $108,300 in winning the Agua Caliente in 1929, by the way. The purse was as large when Golden Prince romped in at the old Tijuana oval in 1929, and when Mike Hall won the race of 1931, the year the great San Beau was shut out.

"A $100,000 race at Tijuana!" spoke up Clarence Buxton. "Why, when I was out there in 1917, a fellow wearing a baseball cap rode through the streets of San Diego, shouting through a megaphone, 'Racing today! Tijuana! 1:30.' "Mr. Buxton," said the soft-spoken Croffroth, "I was the fellow on the horse."

Tom Mix to Make Hot Springs New Home

HOT SPRINGS, (UP) Tom Mix, motion picture star and circus performer, will move his studio here during the winter of 1935-36 to make at least two pictures, he has advised his friends, George and Richard Ryan of this city.

Winter quarters for the Sam B. Dill circus in which Mix performs as rodeo director will be established here, the Ryans said.

The city men talked with Mix and Dill recently at Pine Bluff and were advised of the proposed move to Hot Springs.

The Dill-Mix show opened here this spring.
